Fidelity Freedom® Index Funds help take the guesswork out of investing

Not sure how to invest for retirement? Fidelity Freedom® Index Funds can help make it simple. They address key investing principles for you—so you don’t need to be an expert to invest for your future. Choose a Freedom Index Fund and get the potential benefits of:

Simplicity
Simply choose the Freedom Index Fund with the name that most closely matches the year in which you expect to retire—for example, the Fidelity Freedom® Index 2040 Fund if you plan to retire in or around 2040.

Diversification
Each fund invests in a different proportion of stocks, bonds, and short-term investments across multiple asset classes and investment styles.

Ongoing management
A team of Fidelity professionals makes ongoing decisions and adjustments to each fund’s mix of investments, so you don’t have to wonder when to reallocate or rebalance.

A lifetime investment strategy
Because Freedom Index Funds start out as aggressive and gradually become more conservative, you can stay with the same fund throughout your working career and long into retirement.

Choosing your Freedom Index Fund
To determine the Freedom Index Fund that may be right for you, simply find the year in which you expect to retire in the table below. We’ve shown five hypothetical examples to illustrate the fund choices some investors might make.
Understanding how the Freedom Index Funds work

Each Freedom Index Fund allocates its mix of investments—stocks, bonds, and short-term investments—based on how far it is from its target retirement date. Generally, the longer the time horizon to retirement, the more aggressive the investments. Funds with a target date further on the horizon—such as the Freedom Index 2040 Fund—are focused on growth and invest in higher amounts of stock (equity) mutual funds because of the potential for higher investment returns.

Conversely, funds with a shorter time frame to retirement are more conservative, helping to increase stability as an investor approaches and moves into retirement. For example, the Freedom Index 2020 Fund invests in higher amounts of short-term and bond funds than the Freedom Index 2040 Fund.

Before investing in any mutual fund, consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses. Contact Fidelity for a prospectus or, if available, a summary prospectus containing this information. Read it carefully.

Keep in mind that investing involves risk. The value of your investment will fluctuate over time and you may gain or lose money. Diversification and asset allocation do not ensure a profit or guarantee against loss.

Freedom Index Funds are designed for investors who anticipate retiring in or within a few years of the fund’s target retirement year at or around age 65 and plan to gradually withdraw the value of their account in the fund over time. Except for the Freedom Index Income Fund, the funds’ asset allocation strategy becomes increasingly conservative as it approaches the target date and beyond. Ultimately, they are expected to merge with the Freedom Index Income Fund. The investment risk of each Freedom Index Fund changes over time as its asset allocation changes. These risks are subject to the asset allocation decisions of the investment adviser. The funds are subject to the volatility of the financial markets, including that of equity and fixed income investments in the U.S. and abroad, and may be subject to risks associated with investing in high-yield, small-cap, commodity-linked, and foreign securities. No target date fund is considered a complete retirement program and there is no guarantee any single fund will provide sufficient retirement income at or through retirement. Principal invested is not guaranteed at any time, including at or after the funds’ target date.
